RHEUMATISM

Painful and Dangerous

Rheumatism is due to a diseased condition of the blood cells and corpuscles, brought about by an excess of uric acid in the circulation. It is not only a very painful disease, but an extremely dangerous trouble. The briny acid state of the blood gradually forms a coating over the muscles, and by depositing a cement-like substance in the joints frequently terminates fatally, or leaves its victim a hopeless cripple. It is natural to "doctor" the spot that hurts, and it is quite right to use liniments, hot applications, etc., to get temporary relief from a painful joint or swollen tendon, but Rheumatism is not a skin disease, and such things when depended on alone make one careless, and the disease gets a firmer hold on the blood. S.S.S. cures the disease because it is the greatest of all blood purifiers. It goes into the circulation and removes every particle of the irritating uric acid, builds up the blood, makes it rich and oily, and in this way prepares it for the proper nourishment all joints, muscles, nerves and vessels. If you have Rheumatism, the uric acid out of the blood by taking S. S. S., a purely vegetable medicine, and enjoy freedom from its misery. Book on Rheumatism and medical advice free. ## CLAIMED BY DEATH.

James Ormond Wilson.

Funeral services for James Ormond Wilson, for many years superintendent of public schools in this city, who died unexpectedly at his home, 1430 Massachusetts avenue, yesterday morning, will be held Wednesday afternoon at his late residence, Rev. Dr. Radcliffe officiating. The interment will be in Oak Hill cemetery.

The death of Mr. Wilson was particularly tragic, coming as it did upon his eighty-sixth birthday anniversary, when it had been the prearranged plan of many of his friends in the District to visit him and extend felicitations. Friends of Mr. Wilson, bearing flowers and congratulations, thronged to his home yesterday only to find that he had passed away.

Native of Massachusetts.

Mr. Wilson had been in his usual health up to the last week, and gradually grew weaker. He was unconscious only a few hours and passed peacefully away.

No immediate alarm was felt until Saturday afternoon, when his married daughter, Mrs. A. L. Wilson of Lynchburg, was telegraphed for. She arrived in time to be with her two sisters at his bedside during his last hours.

Mr. Wilson was born in Royalston, Mass., April 2, 1825, and received his early education at the West Brattleboro Academy, in Vermont; the New Salem Academy, in Massachusetts, and the Williston Seminary, in Massachusetts. He took the collegiate course at Dartmouth, obtaining the degree of bachelor of arts and master of arts in 1850.

Following his graduation at Dartmouth, he came to Washington and accepted a position in the Treasury Department, where he remained until 1868. In the meantime he had studied law and was admitted to the bar of the District.

Mr. Wilson served eight years on the board of education, after which, in 1870, he was appointed to the position of superintendent, which he held for fifteen consecutive years. During that service he instituted and carried out successful reforms. To him is given much credit for the improved sanitary conditions in the school buildings, the type of eight-room building now in general use being of his design.

Leader in School Progress.

Mr. Wilson introduced industrial drawing, manual training, domestic economy and military training, and was instrumental in having those subjects adopted by many of the country's schools. He aided in the establishment of the normal school and the Industrial Home School.

Under his direction exhibits were prepared by District school children and sent to the international exhibitions at Vienna and Paris and elsewhere. Each of the exhibitions the work prepared by the Washington students was awarded the medal of highest honor. The French government voted Mr. Wilson, as superintendent of schools, special personal recognition for the work displayed by the students at the exhibition at Paris.

From 1870 Mr. Wilson was connected with many educational and charitable institutions and societies. He was for some time president of the board of trustees of Garfield Hospital and also connected with the Industrial Home School, Columbia Historical Society, the George Washington University, National Metropolitan Bank, Industrial Education of Colored Youth, the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church and the American Colonization Society.

Held Posts of Honor.

Since his retirement from the school board Mr. Wilson had actively interested himself in affairs pertaining to education, and had watched the development of the schools under the plans laid out by him.

In partial recognition of his services, the new normal school, in process of erection at 11th and Harvard streets, was named after him. The school board wished Mr. Wilson to receive recognition during his life, and not have the building named merely as a tribute to his memory. Fortunately, he lived to hear of the plan, although it had been confidently expected he would be present at the dedication.

He is survived by three daughters, Miss Clara Wilson and Miss Anne Wilson of 1430 Massachusetts avenue and Mrs. Eleanor Wilson, wife of Dr. A. L. Wilson of Lynchburg, Va., and three grandchildren, William Lyne Wilson, Mary Hungerford Wilson and Chloe Murdock Wilson. His wife, who was Miss Sarah Hungerford, died five years ago.

Teachers to Attend Funeral.

One hundred and fifty teachers and officials of the local public schools, who served under Mr. Wilson, and who had planned to honor him yesterday, are today attending his funeral services.

Mr. Wilson was severely practical in ideas of school administration and development, said Mr. Stuart. He started the movement for adequate school houses. Four years before he came, in 1858, a report of the board of education said that there was not a single schoolhouse owned or rented, in the city was adequate as a schoolroom. In 1862, when he became connected with the schools the building campaign started.

It was largely to his energy first as a member of the board of trustees and afterward as superintendent of schools that the first modern school buildings were erected, namely, the Wallace, in 1864; the Franklin, in 1869; the Seaton, the Lincoln, in 1871; the Cranford and Jefferson, in 1872; the Curtis, in 1875; the Abbott, in 1876; the John F. Cook, in 1877; the Peabody and the Force, in 1879; the Hien and Garnet, in 1880; the Gales, in 1881; the Banner and Grant, in 1882; the Central High School, the Morse and Brent, in 1883; the Webster, Dennison, Blair and Wormley, in 1884, and the Addison, in 1885.

Supported by Gen. Eaton.

William T. Harris, commissioner of education after Gen. Eaton, was also an aid of Mr. Wilson. Mr. Stuart concluded.

Mr. Wilson's work in the public schools was more conspicuous in construction than in such work as choosing courses of study, although he was the author of the "Merrill Word and Spelling Book," which is at present the standard text book for the city grades. He also wrote a monograph entitled, "Eighty Years of the Public Schools," of which appeared in the report of the commissioner of education in 1894. This article embraced the years 1814 to 1894.

Besides founding the present school system, instituting the first girls' and the first boys' high schools, Mr. Wilson started the first manual training shop in 1855.

CIRCUIT COURT CONVENES.

Grand Jury Drawn for April Term at Upper Marlboro.

Special Dispatch to The Star.

UPPER MARLBORO, Md., April 3.—The April term of the circuit court for Prince Georges county, Md., convened here today. Judges Fillmore Beall and J. Harris Cammiller on the bench. The grand jury selected this morning is composed of Samuel E. Townsend of Brandywine, foreman; Simon S. Adams, J. Henry Murray, Hans Coates, Sylvester J. Harris, John H. Webster, J. Dallas Ervin, William T. Beall, Charles G. Holtmeyer, James A. Whitlock, Samuel J. Sarabury, Benedict Haveron, Henry V. G. Robertson, William W. Wilson, George W. Moore, Charles E. Ridgley, Burnard Maenner, James B. Thompson, E. Quinn Summers, Harvey S. Naylor, George E. Seltner, E. Humphrey, George W. Sandford.

In charging the grand jury Judge Beall said that the county was to be congratulated upon the fact that crime was on the decrease within its borders. The court called attention to the fact that the work of former grand juries had been heavy on account of the consideration of minor offenses which should have been disposed of by the justice of the peace throughout the county. The court suggested that the cases of prisoners confined in jail should be given first consideration, so that they could be taken to jail or released, as the case might be. There is an unusually large number of people here from every section of the county.
